Tickets are now being sold to householders at a price of one cent each, which act as a "shell-out" tickets for Hallowe'en. Instead of handing out apples or candy in response to "Trick or Treat", the Didsbury school children will this year be happy to receive any number of these tickets. Prizes to the two most successful collectors in each Public School room will be given. It is hoped each householder will have an adequate supply of these tickets on hand. They may be purchased from any grade 7 or 8 school girl, or at George Law's Drug Store. Buy plenty and help this very worthy cause.

SPEED the VICTORY 5th VICTORY LOAN

Victory Loan Reaches 43%

At the close of the ninth day, the Victory Loan drive had reached 43% of its objective. The amount subscribed up to Wednesday morning, $34,050.00, with 174 applications.

While the amount subscribed is in line with the progress of the loan in other parts of Canada, the number of individual subscribers is not nearly up to the mark that should be expected.

When it is considered that 2,500 ration cards were distributed in the district, 174 applications for the victory loans does not seem impressive at this stage of the drive.

It is essential a bond, large or small, be purchased by every adult in the district if we are to do our duty.

Back up the boys in the services. They are not only doing their share in the fighting, but are also buying bonds. We, at home, should not do less.

Get your application in for a bond, right away.

United Church Notes.

The Junior Ladies Aid made $77 at their chicken supper. Committee responsible for the banquet were: Mrs. Walter McCoy, Mrs. Ed. Wiggins, Mrs. Garner, Mrs. Parsons, Mrs. Wood and Mrs. Morris.

The last meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Reid Clarke, Monday, October 26th, with a good attendance. Plans were made for an evening's entertainment at the end of November or early in December. Mrs. Ed. McDunn is heading a committee for this, aided by Mrs. Ed. Wiggins and Mrs. Parsons. We believe this will be something very much worth while, so keep your eyes open for the exact date, which will be issued later.

It was decided to have a short program at the meetings in future, to speed up the business end of the Aid, and make the evenings more entertaining. Mrs. Reid Clarke and Mrs. McArthur were put in charge of this angle, and with two such capable people in command, we can look for some pretty good results.

Didsbury Jottings By A.C.H.

So the snow has come at last. And aren't the children happy? But not us. We find ourselves hovering more and longer round the kitchen stove. And being inflicted more and longer from the racketing of the radio. There's that man with the dark handsome voice; all day long he keeps telling us to buy Victory Bonds. We don't mind that so much, as we planned to buy a bond, anyway. But he keeps telling us to buy "First from Accumulated Savings". We sigh heavily with relief every time we keep our outgo down to 108% of our income.

Who are three people with lotions of lucre? Is the Mayor one? Are the school teachers a gang of them? Is the Editor of the Pioneer one in disguise? We wish we knew.

Then another day we raised our eyebrows six inches. We heard a voice say, "This is Tim Buck speaking". Tim Buck? Not THE Tim Buck, surely? Wasn't he that dreadful communist fellow they threw in jail?

Then we remembered. Of course, his pal Joe Stalin won the war for us on the First Front. He must have put in a good word for Tim. And so, here was Tim, cultured and kindly, being GIVEN time on the Networks instead of doing it.

And we liked what the woman wrote in from a lonely rural spot. She wrote, "My sister and I ain't really lonely out here. We got each other to speak to. But we need another woman to talk about."

The Long Holiday

Forms surveying the results of the extended holiday for Alberta schools are now out to various centres of the Province. It has been announced by Dr. G. Fred McNally, Deputy Minister of Education. We want to determine as accurately as possible whether or not any benefit was secured from pupils who would otherwise have been going to school, he stated.

Survey form consists of five sections. The first section deals with the holiday from the ages of 13 and 15, it asks how much were engaged in farm work and in gainful employment other than farming during period September 1st to October 10th. From the forms returned to the Department of Education, it will be decided whether to set the holiday next year during August and September or, if it is not worthwhile, to go back to the usual months of July and August.

An Empire Council

AS FAMILY TIES ARE FREQUENTLY strengthened in times of distress, so have the bonds which unite the various parts of the British Empire become stronger during the present war. There is no doubt but that the Axis nations were convinced that the Empire would not remain united under the trying circumstances of modern warfare, but contrary to their expectations, even the remotest British possessions have rallied to the fullest support of Great Britain at this time, and there have been magnificent contributions in manpower, supplies and money, from every part of the Empire. Apart from the tangible benefits which have resulted from this demonstration of Empire unity, there has also been cause for great satisfaction for all those who hope to see the British Commonwealth of Nations work as a body in co-operation with the other democratic countries in the post-war world, in furthering wide application of the principles for which we are now fighting.

Would Permit Quick Action

Prime Minister John Curtin, of Australia, whose government was recently returned to power with a decisive majority, has made the timely suggestion, that after the war some sort of Empire machinery should be set up, which will permit quick joint action in matters of urgency. He has emphasized that such an Empire Council would not have executive powers, but would operate on "effective consultative lines." Premier Curtin also made it very clear that this plan would in no way involve the creation of an Empire bloc against the rest of the world, but would be instrumental in permitting a strongly united British Empire to work in close co-operation with the other democratic nations in the postwar years. The British Empire has for many years stood as a living example of what can be achieved through the practical use of democratic principles, and it will no doubt play a very important part in ensuring the application of these principles to the re-building of the liberated nations in the future.

Interest Has Been Aroused

This proposal has aroused interest in all parts of the Empire and has put into concrete form the hopes of many other British Empire statesmen who have looked forward to some specific plan for consolidating the Commonwealth. It is recognized that many complex situations will arise after the war, and a council such as Mr. Curtin has suggested would bring the people of the Empire into closer co-operation in the formation of important postwar policies. Canada, in common with Australia, New Zealand, and other parts of the Empire, has extended her sphere of influence greatly during the past four years, and after the war our concern with world politics will be greater than it has previously been. Mr. Churchill has on several occasions intimated his interest in bringing the various parts of the Empire into closer association, and there are few people here, or elsewhere within the Commonwealth, who do not desire to see the strengthening of the ties which have bound it together and given it the unique place which it now holds in the history of the world.

MOTORING IN BRITAIN

Within 20 years after the war, the number of automobiles on the roads will be 29 times greater than in 1929. A disease, the nature of which is still undetermined, is killing the motor car. In 1929, the number of automobiles on the roads was 1,000,000. By 1949, it is estimated that the number will be 29,000,000. A constructive program must be inaugurated now else there will be increasing slaughter and mutilation on the roads. Sir Noel Baker, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of War Transport,

Sir Noel Baker, parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of War Transport,

When we're all doing our best to help win the war none of us can afford to be slowed up physically and mentally by common constipation... the kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the diet. If you're troubled that way, why not get right at the cause instead of "dosing" with purgatives that give, at best, only temporary relief. Here's a simple, "better way" to prevent constipation caused by lack of "bulk"—eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN every day... a grand tasting as a cereal or in crispy muffins... drink plenty of water. Brilliant Plan Failed

Visitor Who Outstayed His Welcome Too Smart For Host

A man who wrote a weekly column for a newspaper had a brother-in-law who arrived for a week-end visit—and remained for six months. The journalist finally hit on a plan to get rid of the pest.

"Tonight at dinner," he told his wife, "I'll say that my column was especially good today. You will disagree and say that it will be terrible. We'll then ask your brother for his opinion. He agrees with me, you'll order him from the house. If he agrees with you, I'll order him from the house. So in either case, we'll get rid of him."

The wife agreed to the plan, and, exactly as arranged, the writer spoke up during dinner that night.

"I thought my column was pretty good today," he said.

"You're silly," retorted his wife. "It was just terrible."

She turned to her brother.

"What did you think, John?" she asked.

The guest shrugged.

"I don't know anything about it," he observed placidly. "I'm staying four more weeks!"—London Tit-Bits.

Telling The Nazis

Norwegians Turned The Tables Neatly On Quisling Newspaper

A few days ago the Quisling newspaper, Fritt Folk, posed this question to its readers: "Who made the cheapest trip across the North sea?" The answer supplied was: "King Haakon. Because the entire trip cost him only one crown."

The next morning an unidentified man telephoned the editor and said he had enjoyed the little joke but added that the newspaper had missed the real point. "What is that?" asked the editor. "Well," said the man, when the king returns he will get the crown back, and then he will have made the entire round trip without it having cost him anything!"—News of Norway.

SMILE AWHILE

Johnny Brown had missed school. The next day he brought this excuse from his father:

"Dear Teacher: Please excuse John's absence from school yesterday. He fell in the river and got all wet. By doing the same you will choke."

A policeman, whose evidence was taken on commission, deposed: "The prisoner called me an ass, a precious doll, a scarecrow, a rascal, and an idiot." And this being the conclusion of his depositions, his signature was preceded by the formal ending, "All of which I swear is true."

Freshman—Did you hear about old absent-minded Professor Freester?

Senior—Why, no.

Freshman—He looked in the directory to find out where he lived and found he couldn't remember his name.

Mistress—Marie, you were entertaining a man in the kitchen last night, weren't you?

Marie—That's for him to say, ma'am. But I tried my best.

"These gloves are about six sizes too small for me."

"Well, you asked for kid gloves, didn't you?"

"And did you ever lose yourself in your work?"

"Yes."

"What is your work?"

"Exploring Central Africa."

"I'd like a couple of hard-boiled eggs to take out," said the young fellow to the girl at the lunch counter.

"All right," replied the waitress with a smile, "but you'll have to wait. Me and Mamie don't get off until ten."

Customer—I'd look at a man's comb.

Sale-girl—Certainly. You wish a narrow man's comb?

Customer—No. I want a comb for a fat man with rubber teeth.

"And what did you learn in Scripture lesson, dear?" asked mother.

"Oh, all about the Ten Commandments," replied Tommy.

The teacher was explaining to her class what was meant by "bigamy."

"It means," she said, "having two wives at one time. Now, can any boy tell me what word means having only one wife?"

"Can teacher," said one boy; "monotony."

Annual National Competition To Be Held At Toronto, Nov. 21st

Boys' and Girls' farm club teams, winners of honours in their respective provinces, under the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Club Work, will assemble from all parts of Canada at Toronto on November 21, 1943, to commence a week's program of the annual national competitions. Because of the farm labour situation and the prospects of a late harvest in some areas, the date set is three weeks later than in 1942. As usual, the contests include judging of live stock and seeds and oral examinations in the six major projects of dairy cattle, beef cattle, swine, poultry, seed grain, and potatoes.

The oral examinations for all six projects will be conducted at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, on November 22, but a change has been made with regard to the judging contests. Instead of taking the teams to various farms in the vicinity of Toronto and elsewhere for the judging classes, all the judging work will be done at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. The main reason for the change are to avoid use of motor transportation in moving the club teams from point to point, and in view of the lateness of the season, to provide comfortable surroundings for the contests. The teams will travel to Guelph by train. Following the completion of the actual contests on November 23, the remainder of the week will be spent on educational tour, with a visit to Ottawa on November 26.

To Fit The Crime

Victims Of German Brutality Best Fitted To Punish Offenders

A general of the German elite guard was captured by Polish guerrillas, a Berne dispatch reports, tried by a "popular court" and then shot. The general was charged with responsibility for the execution of 100,000 Polish patriots.

Evidently it will be much more conducive to justice to permit the victims of German mass brutality to deal with its authors after the war than to for sentimental Americans or British to do so. And infinitely more conducive to justice than to turn the criminals over to a "reformed" Germany, as was done after the last war when of nearly 1,000 criminals only six were given even trifling sentences.—Kansas City Star.

Clothing Regulations

Two-Pant Suits Bring Forth Some Comments

Two-pant suits are back and a lot of people, including men who never bought two-pant suits, feel triumphant, feel that the citizenry has just won a great battle against WPTB. Unfortunately, few ask themselves what they would have been wearing without the WPTB and its regulations. Few compare the quality and price of clothes this war and the last. Few compare their suits with the frayed and patched peace-time relics which are general in Britain.

The clear and usually overlooked truth is that WPTB is the consumer's friend; fighting his battle to get a share of available supplies at moderate price; trying, on the civilian behalf, to see that he gets his just and necessary share and that the armed services don't get more than theirs.—Toronto Financial Post.

Mutual Understanding Between The Nations Of The World Is Necessary To Maintain Peace

IN all our attempts to blueprint a future, one striking and significant fact appears. In the past we have been able to achieve a world union on an economic and cultural basis that has been complete and satisfactory, but we have failed lamentably in achieving any durable form of political union. As business men and individuals we have dealt successfully with other individuals. We dealt not as nations but as traders, scientists, artists, humanitarians.

International business flowed smoothly on a credit system built on mutual confidence that justified itself. Scientific and cultural knowledge leaped all boundaries. Shakespeare was not the property of England alone. His name belonged to all the world, as Beethoven and Mendelssohn also belonged. The medical achievements of Moscow or Paris or Berlin were freely shared with Detroit or London or Winnipeg. And all this because as individuals we were and are men of good will imbued with a common interest and a common humanity.

But, where we have dealt generously and freely as individuals, because as individuals we could feel each other's heartbeats, when we came to think as nations we let ourselves be diverted by all the paraphernalia of power politics. Instead of good will we substituted suspicions, balances of power and buffer states and all the devious ways of outworn diplomacy.

As individuals we created the thing we wanted—a workable international economic union that opened new regions and extended the frontiers of the world. In the passage of two centuries we watched the population of the world triple in number, because trading gave occupations, and occupations provided food for new millions. Now we are faced by the sober and sinister fact that either we must achieve also a political union that will enable our economic union to operate unhampered, or we must resign ourselves to the awful destructiveness of new wars that will readjust the balance of population and destroy those millions who will be unable to find sustenance in a world of new political rivalries and hates and antagonisms.

Only the other day Mr. Hiley, speaking before the Trades and Labor Congress at Quebec, was urging that after the war we in Canada must help to develop trade between countries, "even to the point of helping other countries that they may be able to trade effectively with us and with others." And in Washington Mr. Brooke Claxton, Parliamentary Under Secretary to the Prime Minister, was saying the same thing. This is the voice of Canada bespeaking an extension of that economic union which we have found good. But we must go farther than that, to a political union, so that sudden war will not again blot out a decade of friendly understanding and economic internationalism.

This is a responsibility that Canada cannot again shrug off. We cannot be complacent over the isolationist attitude of certain groups in Canada, and be critical of similar attitudes in the United States. There is no place remaining in our world for those who will not share the responsibilities of all. Canada has taken a premier place in the councils of war. We must be equally active in the councils of peace, to the end that, in company with Russia, the United States, and the rest of the Commonwealth, we may achieve peace in the world by police methods if and while necessary, by mutual understanding if possible.

We have proven that there is an enormous power in human beings to achieve that on which they set their hearts. We have documented it with our economic union. Now we must assure it by taking the last great step—a mutual union for lasting peace. From Liberty Magazine.

THE SCIENTIFIC MIND

Science is nothing but trained and organized common sense, differing from the latter only as a veteran may differ from a raw recruit; and its methods differ from those of common sense only as far as the guardman's cut and thrust differ from the manner in which a savage wields his club.—T. H. Huxley.

Deadly Explosive

Five Men Killed In Britain Before The War, In Making Valuable Experiments

Five Britons, one of them a scientist working with the others to perfect a powerful new explosive, were killed in an arsenal shortly before the outbreak of the war, but their work, ending so tragically, helped to provide the Allies with RDX, a secret explosive more deadly than TNT.

They were killed when a 15-inch shell being filled with 50 pounds of RDX exploded. The Ministry of Supply disclosed. The lives of these men, who took capital risks so that Britain might be spared "not wasted," the Ministry said.

The names, heretofore withheld for security reasons, included those of F. C. Lewis, the scientist, and Cmdr. P. M. Long, admiralty ordnance assistant. The other men were a laboratory assistant and two factory hands.

RDX, which stands for Research Department Formula X, is being produced now in ever larger quantities in Canada and the United States. Scientists at London tried for 10 years to manufacture the super explosive, succeeding only in 1939.

Aviation spokesmen expect that 60-ton transport planes will be flying regularly by 1945.

Supporting The War

What The People Of Britain Have Contributed To War Loans

The total amount of the contributions of the people of the United Kingdom to War Loans, Post Office Savings and other Government funds, from November 22nd, 1939 to August 24th, 1943 is £6,131,273,000 ($27,222,852,129). Of this amount, £58,661,000 ($260,454,840) have been lent to the Government without interest.

Investigation Is Made Into Use Of Vegetable Oils In Relation To Prosecution Of The War

IN normal times, as shown by the years 1934 to 1938, Canada imported more than 200 million pounds of vegetable oils, mostly from countries now in enemy hands. Since the beginning of the war, many of these oils have been unobtainable, but their absence has been considerably offset by the efforts of the Dominion Department of Agriculture to increase, on the one hand, the production of oils that can be grown in Canada, and, on the other hand, to increase supplies by the scientific adaptation of certain oils to other uses.

Much light has been thrown on the far-reaching importance of this work in connection with vegetable oils in relation to Canada's war effort by the publication of the report on "Oil Seeds Investigations", compiled jointly by representatives of the Cereal and the Forage Crops Divisions of the Experimental Farms Service and the Division of Chemistry, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

The work of these Divisions has demonstrated a wide field for progress in the adaptation of certain oils for other uses. For example, procedures are now in use in Canada by which one portion of linseed oil is transformed into a fast drying constituent which is a substitute for chinawood oil, and another non-drying portion which can take the place of olive, peanut, or other formerly imported non-drying oils. Some of these new substitutes may be cheaper, as for example, a modified peanut oil developed as a textile lubricant to replace olive oil. Others may be superior to the materials they replace, as is reported for a modified cottonseed oil which is said to be more stable than palm oil in the tinplate and tern-plate industries.

On the other hand, in expediting the increase in growing oil seed crops, such as flax, soybeans, sunflowers, rape, and safflower, the acreage of flax has been increased to the greatest est extent in the history of this crop in Canada, with a harvest in prospect which may not only supply the domestic requirements of linseed oil but will go to support the allied war effort. However, as the report points out, though linseed oil may be used to supply the three main purposes for which vegetable oils are used, namely for protective coating, soap, and edible purposes, it is not always economical or advantageous to use it. Other oils are necessary, and the sources of these have been investigated, seed supplies increased, and considerable acreages are in prospect for 1943. In the growing of soybeans, 80 per cent, or more of this crop now being produced in Canada is of the four early maturing varieties that have been developed and distributed by the Division of Forage Plants, Dominion Experimental Farms.

New Type Camera

Woman Designs A Tuberculosis X-Ray For Disease Detection

A woman designed the new tuberculous X-ray camera that is now being used by the Minister of Health in London to simplify medical examinations for signs of the disease. Miss Kathleen Clarke, radiographer, was appalled by the extent of tuberculosis in Britain and began experimenting with a miniature camera. It took her three and a half years to complete the experiment. Patients now are photographed, the tiny films are projected on a screen. The doctors are then able to trace any symptoms of the disease at once.

Temperance Field Day

Uniting churches of various denominations in an aggressive campaign against what they consider a common enemy, the Associated Temperance Forces of Alberta is organizing a series of "Field Days" throughout the Province.

This new form of campaign was launched with a great inter-city Field Day in the Cities of Calgary and Edmonton, to which over seventy churches joined. On Sunday, November 7th, another Field Day will be held in the cities, towns and villages between Calgary and Edmonton. This will include: Leduc, Millet, Wetaskiwin, Ponoka, Lacombe, Blackfalds, Red Deer, Penhold, Innisfail, Bowden, Olds, Didsbury, Carstairs, Crossfield and intervening points.

Under the Field Day plan, the Associated Temperance Forces send speakers to the co-operating churches, who present up-to-date facts and figures regarding the present liquor situation. They emphasize the emergent need for aggressive action and explain the policy that is proposed to deal with the situation.

"Liquor is an Enemy" seems to be the slogan of this campaign, and the purpose of the Field Day is to emphasize this idea.

Over sixty churches in the above mentioned places are co-operating on November 7th, making a great combined effort.

Field Days demonstrate that despite all denominational differences, the Christian churches are united in recognizing the danger of alcoholism.

It is planned to follow up this Field Day with a Regional Convention, which will be held in Gaetz Memorial Church, Red Deer, on Monday, November 8th. Convention session will be at 2:30 p.m., and in the evening there will be a public mass meeting to be addressed by Mr. J. A. Wingblade, M.L.A., Wetaskiwin, and Ben H. Spence. There will also be a showing of the movie talkie film, "It's the Brain that Counts".

Next week's issue of the Pioneer will contain a more detailed account of the churches in this district that are joining with one another and with the churches of the Province in this common campaign to abate alcoholism.

The new Army Building at Ottawa, one of the largest structures of its kind in Canada, is now in use.

Friend of Alberta Farmers

Recommends Victory Bonds

to you . . .

DR. R. D. SINCLAIR has combined practical and academic knowledge of agriculture in a unique degree. Born on a farm near Innisfail, Alberta, he was one of the early students of the School of Agriculture at Olds, and was a member of the first class to graduate from the College of Agriculture at the University of Alberta in 1918.

After spending some time in editorial work with a well known farm magazine, Dr. Sinclair joined the staff of the Department of Animal Husbandry of the University in 1922. He obtained his Master of Science degree at Iowa State College and later went to Aberdeen, Scotland to secure his Ph.D.

Dr. Sinclair was appointed Dean of the University's Faculty of Agriculture in 1942. He is recognized as Canada's outstanding authority on swine production and is known personally to thousands of Alberta Farmers.

Dr. Sinclair urges farmers to buy Victory Bonds.

He says:

"During the past four years of war the products of Alberta farms have made a substantial contribution to the food supply of the United Nations. But the need for weapons of war as well as food is still supremely urgent; one without the other will not finish the job.

"The Fifth Canadian Victory Loan provides further opportunity to make a financial investment in the war effort. The Bonds bought now will help to hold the farm lands of Alberta for Alberta farmers and, at the same time, provide the reserve capital which can be used for improvements when victory comes.

"As one born and raised on an Alberta farm, I appeal to the farmers of the Province to buy Bonds of the new Victory Loan to the limit of their financial resources."

War Criminals

Czechs Have Kept A Complete Record Of Atrocities

Somewhere in London, tucked away in the room of a residential house which has been converted into an office, are some ordinary looking files. Extraordinary care is taken to see that they are up-to-date and accurate, for they are the records of war criminals in Czechoslovakia—they have dismal stories to tell of physical oppression, robbery, injustice and treason.

For three years now the Czechoslovak Government has been collecting the evidence against the enemies of mankind. The records contain detailed information about the key men of German aggression in Czechoslovakia. Most of them are Germans but there are a few local quislings among them.

There are thousands of names, with exact dates as to the nature of the crime, together with any details of the person responsible since these may have relevance to the nature of the charge which will, one day, be brought against the culprit. For instance, an enormous number of officials who are responsible for executions, deportations and confiscations of property are people who had a criminal past long before the war. German officialdom includes a heavy percentage of murderers, terrorists, drug addicts, bankrupts, swindlers and men notorious for moral depravity.

The files are a miniature Scotland Yard, but no prosecutions can be instigated until the territory is re-occupied by the Allies.

The information is compiled from a number of sources—the German-controlled press, the radio and the factual evidence of Czechoslovakia who have escaped to London, and reports received from the Czechoslovak underground organization.

In proportion to its body, the ant has the largest brain of any living creature.

A FOOD LESSON

It takes seven pounds of corn to make a pound of pork on the hoof. But you can make 238 muffins from seven pounds of corn. The lesson in this is that civilians must eat more grain and vegetable products, less meat. The idea is to substitute direct consumption of field crops for indirect consumption of field crops in the form of meat.—Vancouver Sun.

PLENTY AROUND

Lord Woolton, British food minister, said the cost of distributing foodstuffs during 1942 was about $1,800,000,000.

The world production of sugar in 1940 and 1941 was about 300,000,000 tons each year; 11,000,000 tons were made from sugar beets and 19,000,000 from sugar cane.

The World of Wheat

by H. G. L. Strange

Wrong Varieties of Wheat

The "Crop Testing Plan" is now analyzing the results of this last summer's growing tests of thousands of wheat samples, each sample representing a farmer's growing field of wheat. Owing to the shortage of labour, tests this year were made only of samples from those areas which in the past have shown a high percentage of bad mixtures.

The first thing that strikes one looking over the tests, is to note the large numbers of farmers who actually were growing a variety of wheat which was entirely different from the variety they thought they were producing. Many farmers, for instance, who thought they were growing Red Bobs—an early variety—were actually found to be producing Marquis—which is a much later variety. Because of this mistake, many of such crops no doubt this year were caught by frost.

The tests show, too, that many farmers who thought they were growing a rust-resistant wheat, either Thatcher, Apex, Renown or Regent, actually were growing a variety susceptible to rust, such as Red Bobs, Marquis or Canus. Here, of course, the farmer would lose much money in a rust year. It does seem important, therefore, if farmers wish to make the full amount of money that their hard work deserves, that they should be absolutely certain that the seed they sow really is of the variety they wish to grow.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN THE WORLD OF FOODSTUFFS

Egypt's 1943 wheat crop, estimated at 47,500,000 bushels, is slightly below estimated requirements—Argentina's exportable wheat surplus was recently estimated by Brookings at 129 million bushels, as compared with 123 million bushels a year ago—The 1943-44 Italian rice crop is not expected to reach the high production attained in recent years.

Timely rains which fell recently in the Argentine improved the condition of the new wheat crop—Europe's 1943 wheat crop, excluding that of Soviet Russia, is estimated to be the largest since 1939—The Dominion Republic expects this year's rice crop to show a substantial increase over the 5,550,000 bushels produced in 1942.

AVOIDABLE LOSSES

Grain Inspection Branch figures for the period August 1 to October 15, reveal a serious situation which involves heavy losses to the farmers concerned. We refer to increases in "smutty" and "rejected" wheat.

Smutty Wheat

With rare exceptions, which need not concern us here, all smutty wheat results from stinking smut (bunt). In Hard Red Spring wheat and Durum, this disease can be completely controlled by seed treatment. On October 14, the Wheat Board Price List provided for a discount of 10¢ per bushel for smut in grades No. 1 Hard to No. 4 Northern. Since August 1, 101 cars have graded smutty, a frequency five times as great as last year. The loss to the farmer is nearly $200.00 per car.

Rejected Wheat

Rejected gradings have increased at an alarming rate this season, though most of the wheat so graded was probably grown in 1942, when harvest conditions were unfavorable. Aside from rejected most rejections are due to excessive moisture resulting in heating and sprouting. The discount for grades No. 1 Hard to No. 4 Northern is 11¢ per bushel—a serious loss. Since August 1, 329 cars have graded rejected; they are three times as numerous as last year. This loss cannot be eliminated, but it can be greatly reduced.

Red Cross Notes.

On the heels of the news that German raiders have again hit heavily at English cities and towns, Dr. F. W. Routley, National Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross said today that there is a greater need than ever before for the volunteer women workers.

"Canadian women have done a magnificent job in Red Cross," stated Dr. Routley. "Women in their homes, working quietly, without praise or glory have done yeoman service. They have given freely of their time and energies in the workrooms, blood donor clinics, prisoner-of-war packing plants and in Corps service."

"Supplies running well over the twenty-six million mark, have gone overseas in a steady and undiminished stream because these volunteers have realized the bitter need."

Major-General Price, our Overseas Commissioner, has warned us that the regular hit-and-run raids on the coastal towns provide a steady drain on Red Cross reserves that must be made up," stated Dr. Routley.

"When you consider the thousands of tons of Red Cross supplies that have already gone into North Africa, it is easy to see what vast reserves must be built up to keep pace with the widening scope of Allied operations."

"To do this, Red Cross volunteers must keep up the magnificent pace they have set for themselves," stated the National Commissioner. "It is not time to sit back, yet. If we are to meet our commitments as they must be met, Red Cross volunteers throughout the Dominion must stick to the job and see it through."

GOVERNMENT SUBSIDIES AVAILABLE

As announced by the Dominion Government, the subsidy of 10c per bushel on oats and 15c per bushel on barley applies on oats and barley sold by any western farmer to a farmer or feed dealer east of Fort William-Port Arthur. Special application must be made to the Canadian Wheat Board, Winnipeg, in order to secure payment. Special forms for this purpose will be provided by the Canadian Wheat Board on request. These subsidies will also be paid on community sales between farmer and farmer in western Canada, provided the farmer delivers the grain over an elevator scale and meets other requirements of the Wheat Board.

WORLD HAPPENINGS
BRIEFLY TOLD

Churchill, on his latest visit, brought President Roosevelt a gift of three rare prints: two of ships and one of a scene in early New York.

More than 2,000 worn-out tires had to be replaced daily during the Eighth Army's advance in North Africa, it was disclosed at a salvage exhibition in London.

The Duke of Wellington, a great-grandson of the famed Iron Duke who defeated Napoleon at Waterloo, was killed in action serving as a Commando captain in Italy.

Dr. Johan Ludvig Mowinckel, 72, three times prime minister of Norway and a former president of the League of Nations, died recently in New York. He had been in the U.S. since 1942.

During the crop year, ended July 31, 1943, it is estimated that the people of Canada consumed only about half as much of wheat as went into animal feed and alcohol production for war purposes.

The Germans fined Odense, the largest town of the Danish island of Fyn, 1,000,000 crowns (about $222,000) for the slaying of a German corporal on Sept. 19. This is the second 1,000,000-crown fine imposed on Odense.

Oliver Lyttelton, production minister, told a press conference in a tribute to Canada's war effort, that the Dominion is launching ships, exclusive of the larger types of warships, to an extent equal to the volume of launching in Britain.

The Axis Partners

Warn Satellite Nations Not To Leave Alliance

The two surviving Axis partners—Germany and Japan—observed the third anniversary of the signing of the Tripartite Pact recently by putting on a show of unconcern over Italy's capitulation, but with a warning to satellite powers not to follow the Italian lead.

In the warning addressed to those who believe that "one war partner can simply step out of the war car if it no longer likes the drive," the newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter, Nazi party organ, said:

"Any nation which today believes it is able to steer its small national or private ship safe and sound through the waves of world tempest will have to pay for it severely one day."

Otherwise, both Tokyo and Berlin propagandists said that Italy never really amounted to anything, but at the same time Japan extended recognition to the remnant of Mussolini's Fascist regime.

In an anniversary message to Nazi foreign Minister Ribbentrop, the Japanese foreign minister, Mamoru Shigemitsu, assured Germany that Japan "will continue to wage the war to its victorious end."

On the whole, Germany and Japan observed the pact which Axis propagandists had proclaimed was intended to end forever the ambitions of the "decadent democracies," without martial music and bombastic speeches.

CHANGE COOKING METHODS

Within the limitations of British wartime food rationing, nutritionists have been able to suggest changes in methods of cooking and other changes which have resulted in aiding in maintenance of health. Dr. H. M. Sinclair, director of the Oxford Nutrition Survey of Britain, told an informal luncheon of armed forces and government representatives at Ottawa.

CHILDREN'S FEARS

"Children should develop many cautions, but few fears," S. R. Laycock, Ph.D., educational psychologist at the University of Saskatchewan, and educational director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene (Canada), says in an article contributed to "Health," the publication of the Health League of Canada.

Writing on the subject of "Children's Fears," Dr. Laycock says "Fears are a handicap in modern life."

Fears are not inherited, but home-grown, and result from experiences in home, school and community, according to the author. Some fears result from associations. Fears are built into some children by ghost stories and other frightening yarns. Many parents, Dr. Laycock regrets, deliberately build fears in their children to control them. It is a bad practice, he says, as bad as the practice of mothers using the father as a threat to control children.

Children are apt to "catch" the fears of their parents, too. Investigation has shown there is a definite correspondence between the fears of parents and their children. Feelings of incompetence and weakness and of emotional insecurity are other causes of fear. If a child's basic needs for affection, belonging, independence, social approval, self-esteem and achievement are not met, he is likely to have fears.

Soothing, punishment or ridicule will not help children get over fears, Dr. Laycock says. He counsels parents to set an example of fearlessness, improving children's self-belief and their skills and knowledge.

"Don't forget that fears are often a general symptom of a child's lack of emotional security at home," the author cautions. "Be sure his basic needs are being satisfied."

Canada Was Invaded

Effects Of Glacial Invasion Still Evident In Many Points Of Canada

Among the great geological events in Canada's history were the Pleistocene glacial invasions. These occurred within comparatively recent times and the effects are still evident in the existence throughout the Dominion of countless lakes, rapids and water-falls. The rich soils of our agricultural regions in southern Ontario and the prairie provinces are also the direct result of glacial action.

The cause of this great ice invasion is still controversial but the fact is indisputable. The glaciers spread and retreated at least four times during the Pleistocene period of the last million years. There were mild spells between some of these invasions, when the climate was warmer than at the present time. Warm water shells and fragments of mild climate trees found as fossils testify to these moderate interglacial climates. Such mementoes may be found in the Royal Ontario Museum.

Glaciers form in high land, and around the poles. It is believed that before the great ice invasion Canada stood much higher above sea level than now, perhaps 2,000 feet. The ice weighed down the earth's crust and then melted away. The sea came up into the Lake Ontario basin and extended far into the Ottawa river depression. Later when the land gradually rose the sea retreated to its present position.

Beau Jonathan

by J.B. Ryan

CHAPTER VI.

OUT of the darkness, as Jonathan approached the rear door of the Castle Theatre, came a subdued moan. He turned toward the sound, his fingers stealing about the handle of his sword. The sobbing groan came again, and Jonathan's eyes were riveted on a huddled shape in the gutter of the street.

Cautiously he stepped closer, then dropped to his knees beside the sprawled body. "Denys!" he cried. "Denys, what happened?" There was no answer and he lifted the drooping head, straightening the cramped figure. The Frenchman's eyes were closed and mingled with the touch of cloth was a warm, sticky feel that Jonathan recognized instantly as blood.

After the shock of horror, Jonathan's first thought was that Monsieur Denys had been attacked by footpads, followed perhaps by some of the hard-eyed men at the Golden Hind who had seen him leave with the money won at the gambling table. But the first object Jonathan encountered, leaning over the Frenchman's coat and doublet to learn the nature of his friend's wounds, was the purse itself, still plump and unopened.

Weakly, Denys resisted Jonathan's effort to slip an arm under his thin shoulders. "I am beyond the help of surgeons," he said. "For a moment the voice was less faint. My wounds are mortal, men and. They stab me in a dozen places—His wretched hand found the Puritan's sleeve and steadied. "You will wait for me, Anne, unaided now, Jonathan. She was not in the theatre—"

"Denys," Jonathan said, "his lips closed, under the Frenchman's ear. "Who stabbed you?"

"There came a rasping sound as the dying man fought for enough breath to speak once more. The servants of the millord—Denys managed. "The same men, Jonathan, whom we fought the other night."

"His lordship!" Jonathan had a fleeting vision of that tall, slender, staking like specter back into his life. "Denys, tell me—who is this man?" Give me his name and I promise you that your death shall not go unavenged!" Denys shook his head and tried to smile. "I—I do not know, Jonathan. Anne—Anne would not reveal his identity. She knew I intended to challenge the millord. I suppose she feared that—that it would be I who died in the duel—"

Something crashed on Jonathan's head but he was so far from the descending club had been aimed faultily. The blow raked through the crown of his head but, glancing off a shoulder blade as he heaved himself to his feet. Came a ripping of cloth as he tore himself free from the men who surrounded him. He dodged a second blow of the club, felt the seizure of fingers once more and jerked about to smash his fist into the face of the man clinging to his cloak. The fellow dropped to the ground, Jonathan's sword breaking through the milling men, was darting away in the darkness.

"Stop thief!" A pistol cracked, sending a ball of lead close to the ear of the fugitive. Jonathan bent lower, reached the corner and creased his pace, whirling into the street after another until he finally shook off the pursuit.

He had some idea now of what had happened in the street before the Castle Theatre, for the man whom he had hit on the jaw had been the doorman of the playhouse. The doorman had seen the assassins jump on Monsieur Denys and had run to summon the watch. The doorman knew Jonathan and he had glimpsed the Puritan's face during their short struggle.

The inexorable case against Jonathan Hale took shape. His hat had been left behind at the scene of the killing. The word would be out for a hard-eyed youth with close cropped chestnut hair in the garb of a Puritan, clothes already stained with the blood of Denys. The patrons of the Golden Hind would remember the youth who had left the tavern with the Frenchman. The gamblers, like the doorman, would tell their story of all of which would prove that he had knifed Denys in a dark street to obtain the gold he had helped the Frenchman win.

JONATHAN was in a section of the city hitherto unvisited, a maze of crooked streets and unpromising houses. His feet slowed as he approached a grimy windowed inn. He must get under cover before daylight. But even this dilapidated hostelry would be searched along with every tavern in London.

A figure sidled out of the shadows toward the hesitant youth. "A penny for a poor man, sir?"

Jonathan was startled. "The words and voice—the grimy, lined face—where had he seen and heard them before? It came to him that this was the same beggar who had accosted him on his arrival in London. But—his previous meeting with the fellow had been in front of the Golden Hind—miles away. Had the dirty-faced man trailed him in his flight across the city?

Jonathan caught one of the skinny arms and dragged the beggar back into the shadows beside the inn. "What do you mean by following me?" he demanded, holding the man helplessly against the wall of the building.

"I—I live around here—" The beggar squirmed in his grasp. "Let me go! I'm only a harmless old man—"

"His shifty eyes steamed as he studied Jonathan's face. "Say, you're the young fellow who give me a shilling in front of the Golden Hind!"

Jonathan released his hold. "You live nearby?"

The grimy man nodded. "Why were you afraid of me, sir? I'm only a poor chimney sweep now, forced to beg."

FOR a moment Jonathan examined the crafty, avuncular face, cunning and shrewd despite its sooty visage. Then he produced his purse, making sure that the wrinkled, nestled eyes observed its well-filled appearance, and extracted a gold crown.

"No woman would allow you to wear such foul garments, Master Sweep," said Jonathan. "So it is obvious that you live alone. Will you let me spend the night with you in return for this bit of gold?"

Understanding leaped into the small eyes and the claw-like hand closed over the crown. "I can accommodate you, sir. No one will think to look for you in the home of Matt Tucker."

The home of Tucker, the chimney sweep, was a smelly, one-roomed hole, under a pile of soot, poverty and an utter disregard of cleanliness could make it. The sweep, without a single indulgence in a pile of blankets in the corner, and invited his guest to occupy the room's one makeshift bed.

It was Jonathan's desire to remain in London. Not only must he locate Mistress Anne, but there was also the score to settle with the nameless nobleman; he had promised Denys to visit retribution on the killer. It was he to find these two people while guarding against the chance of being found himself by the Kinsey men. If he could disguise himself and move in theatrical circles there was a possibility that he would discover Anne, but his lordship—

Jonathan Hale almost caught his breath at the inspired thought that came to him like a bolt from the blue.

"TUCKER!" he called, and the dozing sweep roused himself from the blankets into which he had crawled. "In the morning, Tucker, you will learn that I am wanted for robbery and murder. I am not guilty, but that is beside the point since you will not believe me anyhow. Out of this meeting with me, if I continue to stay with you, two things will arise to prove you. You can report me and gain a small reward offered for my capture. Or you can knifed me when my back is turned to possess yourself of my gold."

The chimney sweep shook his head. "I would neither rob you nor cause your arrest, good sir."

Jonathan smiled his diabolical. "If you do either of those things, Master Tucker, your gain will be a short life. The money will be soon spent, leaving you a rheumatic sweep, poor and starving because you can no longer climb chimneys. Will you accept a bargain that will take the ache out of your joints, the dirt out of your skin and leave you a rich man on the day we part company?"

Tucker hedged. "I have done some small pilferings in my day," he admitted. "But only to still the gnawing of an empty stomach. I spent six months in Newgate years ago and the memory of it still remains. I will neither commit crimes myself nor help you in any criminal activities."

"You need have nothing to fear," assured Jonathan. "From this stay I shall take you to the best house or tavern in London. You are to be my servant. Nothing I do need cause you apprehension, and whenever you think I trifle with the law you are free to go."

Still doubtful, Tucker inquired, "What do you mean by saying that?" Jonathan tossed him a handful of sovereigns. "First, get that soot and dirt out of you and buy yourself some clean clothes. Then obtain for me a complete outfit of swaring apparel, silks and velvets, the trappings of a gentleman."

Tucker's close-set eyes studied Jonathan curiously. "You trust me with this gold?"

"We are both poor men, Master Sweep," said Jonathan. "Each needs the other to make these sovereigns multiply themselves. Be loyal to me and you shall not regret it."

FARMERS AND FARM WORKERS

If Your Farm Work has Slackened for the Winter, You Are Needed Elsewhere in Essential Employment

Highly essential work—very important in Canada's war effort and for the welfare of the Nation—is threatened with shortages of workers. One of the few sources of men available for other high priority jobs is those men on the farm who will not be needed at home during the Fall and Winter. Heavy needs must be met in many lines—producing vitally essential forest products; in base metal and coal mining; in food processing; in railway track maintenance. If you live on a farm and are not needed at home during the Fall and Winter, you are urged to answer this national appeal.

Farmers engaged in essential work during the off season will be allowed to return home when needed. Also, those on postponement under Mobilization Regulations will continue on postponement while in approved essential work during the slack season on the farm.
